David Rouse

WRT Principal David Rouse is a certified planner and registered landscape architect with 30 years of experience in community planning, design, and implementation. He has led many of WRT's major planning projects for regions, counties, and municipalities, including comprehensive plans, park and open space plans, specific area plans, and zoning regulations and development standards. His projects have been recognized by numerous awards, such as EPA's 2009 Overall Excellence in Smart Growth Award for the Envision Lancaster County Comprehensive Plan and the 2010 Daniel Burnham Award from the PA Chapter of the American Planning Association (APA) for the Union County Comprehensive Plan.

Tedd Hardesty

As a Principal of EDGE, Tedd has led the planning, design, and implementation strategy for a wide variety of neighborhood redevelopment projects, educational facilities, campus environments, and sports/recreational facilities. Tedd is committed to creating places that contribute to healthy lifestyles through careful consideration of land use, connectivity, and urban design principles. He is also a LEED Accredited Professional who brings his knowledge of environmentally sustainable site technologies to all of his project work.

Join us on January 17, 2012 for a presentation given by David Rouse of WRT and Tedd Hardesty of EDGE. These two gentlemen will explore the role of planning and design at the community-wide, neighborhood and site scales in improving public health and promoting healthy lifestyles. Taking into consideration various current public health issues, they will cite a variety of case studies implemented to promote healthy design.
