CONNECTING WITH THE NEXT GENERATION

LARRY SPECK, FAIA

If we listen to recent graduates of architecture programs, there are fundamental changes in store for our profession. Maybe the ascendance of "starchitects" and celebrated baubles for the rich and famous in the recent "era of indulgence" will be replaced by a renewed interest in making great places that enhance the everyday lives of ordinary people. This presentation will focus on how we can re-define good design to address the sincere interests of a new generation of young architects.
