Kimberly Dowdell, AIA, NOMA, will be the 100th President of AIA and the first Black woman to lead the organization. She graduated from Cornell University with a Bachelor of Architecture and received a Master of Public Administration from Harvard University. She is currently Marketing Principal at HOK Architects. Within AIA, Kimberly has participated on the Equity and the Future of Architecture Committee from 2019-2020, the New Urban Agenda Task Force from 2019-2021, the AIA New York Nominating Committee in 2021, the AIA Chicago EVP Search Committee in 2021, and was a Young Architects (NOMA) from 2019-2020. Kimberly was President of the National Organization of Minority Architects (NOMA) from 2019-2020. Her platform as AIA President will be ensuring there is space for minority architects at every level of AIA. She has outlined her intentions to "create access to opportunities," "foster greater opportunities for leadership," "build upon the legacy of long-time members," in her #AllinforNOMA initiative. In addition, her platform includes initiatives such as supporting the business of design, making architecture more accessible to all, meeting our obligation to future generations regarding climate action, and navigating the future of ediegn work with advances in technology.

Rod Henmi, FAIA, NOMA

Rod Henmi has compiled a distinguished career as an award-winning architect, educator and advocate for social justice. His professional career focuses on community-oriented projects such as affordable housing, schools and municipal buildings. He is deeply committed to furthering opportunities for minority architects and underserved communities and served on the board of the National Organization of Minority Architects (NOMA). He is currently the Chairperson of the Board of Directors of Kimochi, Incorporated, a non-profit agency dedicated to improving the lives of senior citizens. As a result of his career achievements, influence on the profession and community service, he was invested in 2011 into the College of Fellows of the American Institute of Architects. He graduated with a Bachelor of Architecture with High Distinction from the University of Minnesota and a MAUD degree from Washington University in St. Louis. After graduation he taught at Washington University for fourteen years, during which time he co-authored with Iain Fraser the seminal book on architectural drawing, Envisioning Architecture: An Analysis of Drawing. He was Director of Design in 2009. He is an enthusiastic hip-hop dancer, lover of R and B and avid traveler who documents his journeys through carefully crafted hand drawings.

Saundra Little, FAIA, NOMA

Saundra Little is a Principal and Director of Diversity and Inclusion with Quinn Evans, is an accomplished architect, and dedicated advocate for the revitalization of the urban realm. Her work in design, revitalization, and adaptive use projects consistently demonstrates a respect and sensitivity to the unique architectural heritage of local neighborhoods. Little has also focused much of her career on mentorship and introducing young minorities to the architectural profession. Saundra Little is a past President of NOMA Detroit (2010-2012), fostering communications and fellowship among minority architects, AIA Detroit Board Member 2014-2016, (Design Core) Detroit Creative Corridor Center DC3 Advisory Board 2013-2017, Detroit Sustainable Museums Action Council (dSMAC) Advisory Board 2017-2018, and current NOMA National Midwest Vice President 2020-2023.
